Hill International Promotes Program Manager Peter P. Martini to Vice President

February 3, 2020

PHILADELPHIA and BOSTON – FEBRUARY 3, 2020 – Hill International (NYSE:HIL), the global leader in managing construction risk, announced today the promotion of Program Manager Peter P. Martini, MCPPO to Vice President.

Peter has more than 40 years of industry experience as a construction executive with a proven track record of leadership for a wide range of construction projects, teams, and clients. His responsibilities at Hill encompass acquiring work, overseeing assignments, and managing the New England staff and business. Peter's experience as both a general contractor and owner's representative embodies key services to support the entire project life cycle from both financial and operational standpoints. In his career he has been responsible for business development, RFP writing and presentations, identifying and hiring staff, leading team divisions, and maintaining career-long bottom line responsibility and overhead management. Peter is familiar with negotiating with subcontractors and suppliers using his strong purchasing skills, and he brings a solid understanding of preparing and negotiating construction contracts. He has a life-long practice of ethical business standards and fair dealings and has served on the front-end of strategic planning and internal management development of systems and procedures. Peter's ground-up development of skills as laborer, surveyor, estimator, project manager, and field supervisor, coupled with his technical expertise in all building systems and construction methods, makes him a valued resource for Hill's project teams and clients.

As Vice President, Peter will lead Hill's Boston/Needham office for the company's Project Management Group.

"Peter has been working on an interim basis as Hill's New England manager," said Michael V. Griffin, P.E., President, Americas Region. "He has the confidence and respect of our clients and staff and is well-deserving of this promotion."
